

Table of contents

Introduction: Slavery, Memory, Citizenship - Paul E. Lovejoy

Part I. Slavery:

chapter 1. Slave life in the Canadian Maritime Colonies - Harvey Amani Whitfield chapter 2. Afro-descendant slaves in the legal system of colonial Chile, 1770-1823 - Carolina Gonzalez chapter 3. Discipline and masculinities in slave communities of the antebellum South - David Doddington chapter 4. Trauma in diaspora: slavocentric visions of African American identity in Liberia and the antebellum United States - Ben Schiller chapter 5. 'Over the way' on the border of Canada before the Civil War - Dann J. Broyld chapter 6. Slavery and the forgotten women slave owners of Luanda (1846-1876) - Vanessa S. Oliveira

Part II. Memory:

chapter 7. Identifying Juan Correa, the painter, and Vicente Guerrero, independence leader, in Mexican history - Maria Elisa Velazquez chapter 8. Dawn of tomorrow, 'a noble tradition to be maintained' in the historical memory of Canada - Melissa N. Shaw chapter 9. Confronting 'liberal lies' about Black Canada: George Elliott Clarke and the children of Frantz Fanon - Daniel McNeil chapter 10. Devoir d'histoire: confronting the history of slavery in public space in France - Sonja Dinter chapter 11. Conflicting narratives of identity and the past in the memory of slavery in Guadeloupe - Ary Gordien chapter 12. Walls of memory and political expression in Port-au-Prince - Lenique Gaspard

Part III. Citizenship:

chapter 13. Integration and assimilation? Afro-Mexicans in the birth of the Mexican nation, 1810-1850 - María Camila Díaz Casas chapter 14. Re-appropriating the repressive past through memories of slavery in the Mandara Mountains - Chetima Melchisedek and Gaimatakwan Kr Dujok Alexandre chapter 15. 'Forgetting' slavery, resilience and the end of national deafness in France - Myriam Cottias chapter 16. Art, citizenship and reparations for slavery: practices and perspectives from two engaged artists in Rio de Janeiro - Francine Saillant chapter 17. Compensation and the legacy of trans-Atlantic slavery in international law - Blaise Tchikaya Appendix. Summer institute 2011: slavery, memory, citizenship.